

The healthcare revolution is here!

For too long now the government has handed the running of the NHS to various parties, all with differing approaches and visions of steering our beloved NHS into a position of stability and greatness once again. In years gone by people of the UK were in an enviable position, having access to one of the best healthcare systems in the world and one that was free. Unfortunately, with time, the NHS has found itself coming under increasing pressures, both resourced based and financially, the results of which have lead to today's experiences being both positive and negative. The question is, where do we go from here? Maybe the government will find a solution! In the meantime you could join the healthcare revolution and put your health in your hands!

The current UK healthcare system is complicated and disjointed, so making it work in a way that is right for you is often fraught with anxiety and stress, just simply making an appointment to see your own GP, through to getting referrals and waiting for results, can be a nightmare. More often than not the ten minutes we have with our GP does little to inspire us with confidence but more worryingly can result in mis-diagnosis or failure to make an accurate diagnose. This is something that is being reflected more and more in evidence, reports and statistics. This is no reflection on the skills of the GPs working in the NHS, in fact quite the contrary. Our NHS GPs are very highly skilled individuals that do the most remarkable job with the tools available to them. It is the system that is making their job so much more difficult. If we could have unlimited time with their own GP, make same day appointments, could speak to him/her on the telephone anytime, including evening and weekends, and had a team of highly trained individuals who know how the system operates working with the GP, but on our behalf, our primary healthcare would be truly taken care of. With this level of service available to us, the rest would be simply down to us. We would have our health in our hands, and depending on how proactive we were we could begin to use the system to our advantage by beginning to take 'preventative' steps, using our GP and his/her team to improve and maintain our health, not simply being there to fix you when something goes wrong.

The trouble is this is a pipe dream, a fantasy that is unachievable by the NHS! It may well be a fantasy for the NHS but it is happening and it is available here in the capital and for as little as £30/month. Harley Street is world famous, establishing its reputation back in the 18th century for exciting, innovations and pioneering developments in medicine, becoming a centre of excellence for cutting edge medicine and that trend still continues today. Harley Street may be considered by many as somewhere only for the rich and famous with Doctors and Consultants charging enormous fees for every consultation, but despite this being the norm, it certainly is not the exception. The exception can be found at Galen Health, Number 9 Harley Street, arguably one of the most impressive buildings inside and out on Harley Street, a place designed to give you both five star luxury and service but without the excessive price tag. Galen Health was founded by an exceptionally gifted NHS GP with a vision to practice and offer exceptional primary care services to anyone who is serious about their health, a GP who has been integrally involved with government health reforms and who has worked with inspiring, world leading mentors from across the spectrum of UK healthcare. “Behind every great GP...there is a great team allowing him/her to be great”, and at Galen Health this is no exception. Led by Dr Lidder is a team of highly skilled GPs and nurses all at the pinnacle of their professions, and a remarkable team of individuals that make up Dr Lidders ‘Healthcare Assistants’. These healthcare assistants are handpicked individuals from the NHS, the private sector and the Insurance world whose sole responsibility is to support Dr Lidder and his clinical team. They ensure that every aspect of care and every treatment pathway that a Galen Health member receives are completely seamless, from organising appointments and referrals, through to chasing results and organising follow-up care. Beyond this Dr Lidder’s healthcare assistants also facilitate each Galen Health member with the logistics of organising other aspects of their health including sourcing the best Nutritionists, Osteopaths, Physiotherapists, Personal Trainers, Dentists, Orthodontists, Opticians and many more at excellent rates, several of which can be found on site at Galen Health.

Despite the five star surroundings and five star service, it doesn’t stop there. On site and at Dr Lidder’s finger tips is a full scanning suite comprising of MRI, CT, Ultra Sound, Cone Beam, Thermal Imaging and X ray, combined with a dedicated pathology laboratory providing on the spot blood testing and results. Dr Lidder finds himself at the helm of arguable one of the best and most advanced diagnostic centres in the UK and as we all know early diagnosis saves lives, emotions and finance. Therefore, not only do you get outstanding day-to-day care, but you also have access to world class diagnostics getting to the route of any complications fast and as such the ability to become proactive and in turn ‘preventative’ with your health. “Prevention is better than cure”. We all say it, now we can all have it.

Prices start from £30/month with children under 16 years old being included for free. There is no age or medical discrimination when becoming a member. You do not have to leave your NHS practice, but you can nominate your Galen Health GP as your GP for insurance purposes which makes obtaining accurate referrals quick and simple as well as stress free knowing that your healthcare assistant is organising everything for you. If, however, you are not privileged enough to have health insurance, your healthcare assistant will act on your behalf liaising with your NHS practice to ensure you get your referral processed as quickly as possible and generally speeding up the system. If you are part of a group, club, organisation, business or corporation, per person rates are lower still and as such it is worth speaking to the Galen Health business team to discuss your situation in greater detail.

£30/month gives unlimited consultations with your own private Harley Street GP in person or on the telephone from 08:00 – 22:00 (24/7 for £50/month members) plus your own personal ‘Healthcare Assistant’ and access to the full range of Galen Health services.

“With time dedicated to you, why worry about your health when Galen Health can take care of it for you?”
